

STUDENT NAME _____ STUDENT ID _____

A reconsideration of need appeal is appropriate when the amount of income that you, your spouse, or your parent(s) reported on FAFSA has changed considerably due to a documentable special circumstance that occurred.

Deadline for appeal

First Monday in August for students starting in the fall term or the first Monday in December for students starting in the spring term

Your appeal will not be reviewed until the following documentation has been received and processed by the Financial Aid Office (9.8 (c)-17.2 ()]

- 1) 2024-25 FAFSA application
- 2) Signed copy of 2022 federal tax return including Form 1099
- 3) 2024-25 Household Size Verification Form
- 4) 2024

-25 Asset Form

Please check the option(s) that best describe(s) your situation	Documentation Required
_____ My own, my spouse's, or my parent(s) employment income has changed considerably	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> f Personal statement detailing the current situation and the prospects for employment change in the near future f Documentation verifying the change in employment income such as a termination or layoff notice (if applicable). f Last pay stub showing year to date earnings and a pay stub from new employment (if applicable). f Documentation of all unemployment benefits if not reported on tax return (if applicable). f You may also be asked to provide a copy of your 2022 202s/1099 forms, and/or your 2023 tax returns, including all schedules.
_____ I, my spouse, or my parent(s) have/had unusually high unreimbursed, non-elective medical or dental expenses	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> f Personal statement detailing your circumstances f Medical Expense form with supporting documentation f A copy of your 2023 tax return, including schedules, may be requested
_____ I, my spouse, or my parent(s) lost untaxed income or benefits such as child support	